

2009 International Poultry Exposition
January 28-29, 2009
Atlanta, Georgia

The Penn State Poultry Science Club had another very successful showing at the 2009 College Student Program at the International Poultry Exposition in Atlanta. Three hundred students from 25 universities attended the program.

PSU won the Best Scrapbook Award (10th consecutive year) and was the runner-up to North Carolina State University for the Club of the Year Award.

Poultry & Avian Science Minor and senior Agribusiness Management major Kevin Kreider (Lebanon, PA) received the 3rd place Student of the Year Award along with a $500 cash prize.

Jim Perdue (Chairman of Perdue Farms, Inc.) delivered the annual address to the students and then posed for pictures with the award winners. Jim Adams (President & Chief Operating Officer of Wenger Feeds and PSU alumnus), who is a U.S. Poultry & Egg Association (USPEA) Board Member, was this year's chair of the College Program Committee and emceed the Awards Program. A press release with photos is forthcoming.
